

Ask

Questions

Can the person raise both arms over their head?

A stroke usually happens on only one side. A person who has had a stroke may not be able to raise both arms over their head.

Can the person talk in their usual way?

If you have a stroke, it might have damaged the part of your brain that helps you talk.

Can the person smile normally?

A person who has had a stroke may have a smile that is crooked or not equal on both sides.

Don't wait!

Call 911.

Time is the most important thing.