

JCAHO statistics for Sentinel Events clearly indicate that the majority of problems occur due to poor communication.

Many times this is due to a breakdown in communication among different hospital departments. One of the reasons for the development of the tracer methodology was to pinpoint system processes within hospitals that need improvement.

By tracing a single patient throughout his or her hospital stay, it becomes clear where a communications breakdown can occur.