Danielle Mankin, M.D., Joins Southeast Georgia Physician Associates-Primary Care in Camden

ST. MARYS, Georgia: March 1, 2021 – Southeast Georgia Health System is pleased to welcome board-certified family medicine physician Danielle N. Mankin, M.D., to Southeast Georgia Physician Associates-Primary Care on the Camden Campus. Mankin earned her medical degree from Mercer University School of Medicine in Savannah. She completed her internship and residency training in family medicine at Chestnut Hill Hospital in Philadelphia and a second internship in obstetrics and gynecology at the Donald and Barbara Zucker School of Medicine at Hofstra/Northwell in New York. During her residency, she also earned a diploma in international medicine and public health.

Mankin discovered her calling early in life and never wavered. "Since I was little, my dream was to become a doctor. I wouldn't be happy doing anything else."

By treating patients from children to seniors, Mankin accommodates every member of a multigenerational family. "I love primary care and taking care of families," she says. "In addition to getting to know them on a more personal level, seeing the entire family provides me with valuable insights into their medical history, health and lifestyle habits, and culture. This is important since the health of one person can affect the entire family."

Mankin sees patients for a variety of reasons – from wellness checkups and preventative care to diagnosis and treatment of chronic diseases, ranging from diabetes to osteoarthritis. She also treats individuals who struggle with depression. Mankin's training in obstetrics and gynecology is a helpful resource for women seeking information on sexual and reproductive health, as well as menopausal concerns.

"I'm interested in patient's thoughts and opinions, and I believe in shared decision-making," says Mankin. "I'm always available to patients when they need me to guide them through a difficult diagnosis and medical decisions."

A Georgia native, Mankin was excited to settle in the Golden Isles with her husband, Bradley William Newton, M.D., a gynecologist at Southeast Georgia Physician Associates-Obstetrics & Gynecology. Camden County not only allows her to work with "excellent primary care and specialty doctors who care for the whole region," but is the perfect spot to enjoy her favorite hobbies, boating and hiking.
