Southeast Georgia Health System Presents
BEE Award To Norah Galvin

BRUNSWICK, Georgia: January 15, 2020 – Southeast Georgia Health System recently presented the BEE Award to Norah Galvin, RT(N), (CT), CNMT in recognition of her quick, life-saving response when noticing a man in distress in the Health System's parking lot.

A nuclear medicine technologist in the Health System's Brunswick Campus Radiology Department, Galvin was nominated for the BEE Award by her co-worker. The BEE Award honors and recognizes team members outside of nursing who go Beyond Exceptional Expectations.

Excerpts from the nomination included, "Norah has worked for the Health System for more than four years and I can attest that on any given day she is always so sweet and caring and willing to lend a hand where needed. Thanks to her calm and caring demeanor, she was able to help save the life of a stranger. On that fateful day, Norah went off campus to pick up lunch for several of us in our department and as she returned she noticed a man in distress in the Parkwood Drive visitor's parking lot. A man unfamiliar with our campus was attempting to get his extremely ill brother to the Emergency Care Center. While trying to get him out of the car, his brother collapsed to the ground and stopped breathing. Norah, without hesitation, immediately ran over to assist with the situation. She called 911 and started chest compressions, which she did for several minutes until the medics arrived. I believe Norah was placed in the right place at the right time to help save a life. She definitely went Beyond Exceptional Expectations. Norah possess all of the qualities of an amazing health care team member and I'm honored that she's not only my teammate, but also my friend."

Galvin was presented with a BEE Award plaque and certificate by Scott Wilson, MSA, CRA, director, Imaging Services, in front of her peers and Health System leadership. She also received a BEE pin, balloons, honey danishes to share with her team, and a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

Those eligible for the BEE Award include all Health System team members and volunteers outside of nurses (RNs and LPNs may receive the DAISY Award). These team members provide extraordinary experiences for Health System patients, their families and visitors by exemplifying quality service and extraordinary care.

Anyone may nominate a deserving team member for a BEE Award online at sghs.org/bee-award, or nominations may be placed in BEE boxes located throughout the Health System's Brunswick and Camden campuses. A committee of Health System team members review the nominations and determine the BEE Award recipient(s).
