AdventHealth Expands Access to Advanced Neuroscience Care with New Neurosurgery and Neurointervention Clinic at Cartersville Opening Nov. 8

AdventHealth is expanding access to specialized neurological care in Northwest Georgia with the opening of AdventHealth Medical Group Neurosurgery and Neurointervention at Cartersville on Nov. 8. Located inside AdventHealth Medical Group Family and Internal Medicine at Medical Drive, the new clinic will provide advanced neurosurgical and neurointerventional evaluation and treatment closer to home for patients throughout Bartow County and surrounding communities.

Led by Jose Marino, MD, the practice will serve as a regional access point for highly specialized neuroscience care, offering advanced evaluation and treatment for brain aneurysms, pulsatile tinnitus and select subdural hematomas.

"When patients are facing complex neurological or neurovascular conditions, timely access to specialized care can make a meaningful difference," said Dr. Marino. "Our goal is to provide expert evaluation and treatment options close to home while delivering compassionate, whole-person care for patients and their families."

The clinic will offer a range of specialized services, including:

- Elective aneurysm evaluation and treatment for patients with known or suspected brain aneurysms who need expert consultation and treatment planning.
- Evaluation and care for pulsatile tinnitus, a condition characterized by hearing a rhythmic or pulse-like sound in the ear that may require neurovascular assessment.
- Middle meningeal artery embolization, a minimally invasive neurointerventional procedure available for select patients with subdural hematomas.

The new location strengthens AdventHealth's neuroscience network by providing patients and referring providers with convenient access to advanced neurovascular expertise in Cartersville.
